Tuesday, August 2, 1870.

The War News. The name of Leopold of Hohen-Zol lern is unmentioned. The Kingship of Spain is forgotten. Prim, Serrano, and Repartero may give up the office of King-maker for a time. Europe has more important work on hand. Leopold was the brand to set fire to the faggots col lected by Prussia and France, and has been immortalized by setting all Europe in a blaze, and blaze it will until the com bastible elements are consumed. There is no way to stop it except by rivers of human blood. The rumored treaty between France and Prussia has frightened Belgium into asking England and Russia to garrison her towns. The Prussians on one side and the French on the other most vehemently deny being the author of the treaty. Ollivier says Bismarck proposed it and the Emperor rejected the proposition; whilst Bismarck says the treaty is in Bernadotte's handwriting. It is more than likely that France and Prussia were alike equally. concerned in the preparing of the treaty and now it is paraded before the world by Prussia to excite English feeling in favor of Belgium and consequently egainst France. The time apparently was not ripe to carry out the terms of the treaty; but the willingness of the parties thereto to divide the spoil can scarcely be doubted, not withstanding their protestations to the contrary the treaty has operated as a semi-interlude. The spectators were diverted a moment whilst the principle actors were shifting the scenes. Now the telegrams reveal both ormies on the frontier stretching from Switzerland to Luxembourg ; each feeling the strength of each other's forces and positions, by reconnoitering parties; each manoeuvering to out general the other. The French positions commence at Theonville near Luxembourg, and from there extend to Metz, the present head-quarters of the Emperor, thence to St. Avold opposite Saarbrucken in Prussis, and thence to Bitche, and Strasbourg. Besides which there are quite a number of fortresses occupied. Marshall Can-Robert occupies Chalen:, half-way between the frontier and Paris, evidently as a reserve. On the side of Germany the Prussian forces are posted, the telegrams teils us, at Saarburg, Saar Louis, and Sasrbruck. Behind these frontier posts stand Treves, Coblentz, Mayence, and Manheim. Evidently the last named places are those on which Prussia most depends for safety. But their recent successful resistance of the French attacking force at Saarbruck shows that every foot of ground on the frontier will be first stubbornly contested by them before retiring to the Rbine. The road Coblentz, on the line of the Moselle, appears to be the aim of the French, and the fight at Saarbruck. where the Prussians were reported to be massed in great force, was evidently to further that object. The Prussians are apparently posted in such vast numbers between the frontier and the Rhine, that an advance is a difficult undertaking for the French. The entrance of the Prussiens into France below Bale, in Switzerland, can scarcely be interpreted to be more than a raid, for it is difficult to see what the Prussian army can effect away from their main force on the Saar. Baden, opposite the French side of the Rhine, is evidently lined with soldiers, but it does not seem to be a weak point, the Rhine being too good a natural harrier for both sides. The continuous land communication from Metz, St. Avold, and Bitche into Rhenish Prussia seems to point it out as the battle-ground, Unless by some mishap the French should lose, then, in that case, if peace didn't follow, the Prussians might advance into France. The Emperor has, however, indicated in his proclamation that the war will be long and hard contested, and no sign is visible to the contrary. Happily, the fight is still confined to the principals and the chances do not seem to be so great as they were of other nations being drawn into the struggle. If Belgium be garrisoned by Russia and England, they are not likely to be parties to the contest. Austria is neutral and Italy will take Rome. One temporal monarch seems certain to be dethroned-that is the Pope-and there does not appear to be a single hope on which to ground his restoration. Italy under Victor Emmanuel will have Rome. as the capital-and the power of the Pope will not be allowed to extend beyond spiritual affairs. The loss of the temporal power of the Pope will be regarded as one of the most extraordinary events of the world, occurring just at the very moment that the greatest Paris, July 31 .- M. Ollivier, Prime Minister, had an interview yesterday with the principal editors of Paris, during which he explained the position of the government on several questions. Concerning Prussia he fiden e than ever in my "frail bark," which gave some explanations of the secret treaty is but little i jured, though the prow was project, which Benadotte had previously given Bedroom Furniture, relative to measures taken by the Cabinet some time ago to effect a general disarma-ment. He says these efforts were merely in-termediatory of Lord Clarendon's, for a like purpose. Bismarck replied to Clarendon that King William refused absolutely to disarm. Ollivier said he gave the honor of his name and that of his colleagues, that no other offer was made to Prussis than that made to Clar-

On the Roman question Ollivier said it has seemed desirable and useful to the French government to evacuate Rome, because it always kept its promises, which unite us more closely with Italy and Austria. The Journal Official publishes Bernadotte's explanation of the secret treaty affair. He says it is well known Bismarck made France an offer before and after the war with Austria. The substance of that offer was that France should take Belgium as compensation for the aggrandisement of Prussia, but the Emperor in all cases declined the proposition. The very moment the treaty of Prague was con-cluded, Bismarck again betrayed a desire to restore the equilibrium, and made several propositions looking to combinations affectg the interest of States bordering on France. During one of these conversations Bismarck declared to Bernadotte this secret treaty proect, which has just been made public, and which Bismarck has kept ever since. This accounts for the handwriting being by Bernanotte, who gave notice of the proposed treaty to the Emperor's government at the time, but the proposition was promptly rejected. Bernadotte adds that the King of Prussia was not favorable to Bismarck's plan. Paris, July 30 .- To-day the Emperor assumed command of the army.

The Prince Imperial visited the camps to day, and was received with great enthusiasm. There has been no serious engagement. All rumors to the contrary are false.
